

Shaping thought is much like working with clay
The flexible nature of the substance allows creative
Expression a chance to convey ideas of an unworldly
Nature: the envisioned concepts embodied by Concentrated energies of the imagination manifesting
In a myriad of different forms: that which springs from
The mind's creative efforts, reflecting various qualities
Of focused thought: the extent to which the creative
Spark stirs the heart into action, imprinting visions
Upon minds of a like-minded nature: the impression
That stems from experiences of a transformative nature
Clearing the way for profound growth to occur:
As inspiration takes hold of the heart much like a flame
That engulfs all that stands in its turbulent path.